Norwich five-piece Bad Touch are happy to announce that they will be special guests on The Quireboys and FM co-headline nationwide UK tour in April 2019. Planet Rock will launch a 48-hour ticket pre-sale at 9am on Wednesday 12th December via www.planetrocktickets.co.uk and www.seetickets.com. Tickets will then go on sale to the general public on Friday 14th December from the following online ticket retailers - www.alttickets.com, www.gigantic.com, www.seetickets.com and www.planetrocktickets.co.uk.

The 7-date UK tour takes in Nottingham Rock City (April 1), Cardiff Tramshed (April 2) Wakefield Warehouse23 (April 4), Sheffield Corporation (April 6), Manchester Ritz (April 7), Glasgow Garage (April 8), and Wolverhampton KK's Steel Mill (April 9).

In addition to the above UK tour, Bad Touch will also play various festivals in 2019 including Giants of Rock in Minehead in January, Planet Rock Winter's End in March.

In October 2018, Bad Touch released their third studio album "Shake A Leg" via Marshall Records. The album received rave reviews and was followed by a UK Tour. The album, which featured the rock radio single "Lift Your Head Up", was recorded in their home county of Norfolk at Orange Tree Studios and followed their critically acclaimed 2016 album "Truth Be Told" which featured the rock radio hit "99%".

"Shake A Leg" takes a more personal and ambitious approach in song-writing and production due to the bands choice to write more spontaneously within the studio itself resulting in more emotional 'in-the-moment' performances. The new album features hand-picked songs that originate from a collective of all the members influences which they proudly wear on their sleeve.

Known by fans and critics alike for having a reputation as a busy and hard-working band, Bad Touch continue to tour far and wide and are looking forward to playing tracks from the new album when they tour the UK in 2019.

BAD TOUCH - BIOGRAPHY

An unassuming college in Norfolk was where it began for rock five-piece Bad Touch. When they started out in 2010, they were performing covers in local pubs but it wasn't long before they started to compose and play original material.

Following in the footsteps of The Darkness, KT Tunstall and Arctic Monkeys, Bad Touch recorded their first EP at Leeders Farm Studio in 2012. This sparked a wave of new opportunities for the band, including the chance to perform in venues across the UK. Building a reputation as an outstanding live band, they soon earned themselves an Exposure Music Award, and received an invitation to play Hard Rock Hell.

The next two years saw Bad Touch reach new heights. Not only did they win the prestigious Marshall Ultimate Band Contest, but they also toured with a variety of hard rock artists including Bonafide, The Quireboys and Tyketto. They rocked the UK festival circuit with appearances at Download, Hard Rock Hell and Steelhouse.

Bad Touch's eagerly awaited debut album came in April 2015. 'Half Way Home', which was recorded at Foel Studios, received rave reviews from the critics, including Classic Rock Magazine who said: "Straight-to-the-point classic hard rock – what's not to like?" Capitalising on the success of their debut release, the band embarked on a full UK tour with Northern Irish rock band, The Answer.

Touring continued in 2016, with supports slots for Jared James Nichols, Kentucky Headhunters and Massive. The band rounded off their year on the road with the release of their second album 'Truth Be Told'. The lead single, '99%', was remixed for radio by legendary Rolling Stones producer, Chris Kimsey. Their critically acclaimed sound secured them a slot on the Planet Rock Roadstars tour as well as performances at Ramblin' Man, Wildfire and Amplified. After a hectic festival season, Bad Touch headlined their first tour for 'Planet Rock Presents'.

2018 is shaping up to be another defining year for Bad Touch, following their support tour with Skid Row in March and their recent worldwide album deal with Marshall Records.

In October 2018, the band released their third studio album "Shake A Leg" and embarked on a nationwide UK tour in October and November with special guests Aaron Buchanan & The Cult Classics and Daxx & Roxanne. They released the single "Lift Your Head Up" which was playlisted on various rock radio stations including Planet Rock.
